Japs Friendly to China.

Japan's attitude toward China was most friendly, said Mr. Sato, and while maintaining no moral Monroe doctrine over the empire she felt that it was more or less under Japan's protection. This protection, by way of illustration, was not so strong as that of the United States over South America.

Mr. Sato said that while a desire for peace was the sentiment of Japan, it was not a desire for peace at any price.

"Japan is in a very prosperous condition at present," he said, "and the war taxes do not fall heavily upon the people yet. There has already been subscribed $250,000,000 to a new internal loan, and our prosperity is further indicated in the success of our foreign loans."

As to Japan's attitude toward America, Mr. Sato laughingly asked:

Friendship for America.

"You mean the yellow peril," and then became more enthusiastic in his conversation than upon any previous topic. He said:

"We are almost boyish in our friendship to America. While we are friendly to China as orientals, our greatest friends are America and England. The first monument ever erected to any foreigner in Japan was that to Commodore Perry, and the policy and conduct of the American people for the last 50 years has been one of help to us. We regard America as an ally without a treaty."

The question was put to Mr. Sato as

CLAY CENTER, Kas., July 25.—Eight prominent temperance women smashed a joint at Idana, owned by John Patterson. With hatchets they broke open a barrel of whisky and several cases of beer. Six men were in the joint drinking. The women knocked the glasses from their hands. The joint was thoroughly wrecked.

The Boerse Gazette has a well written editorial pointing to the fact that the good neighborly relations with Germany enabled Russia to withdraw part of her army from her western frontier, and declare it is the duty of Russian diplomacy to strengthen these relations, at the same time maintaining that the Franco-Russian alliance, made in the interest of peace, must in no wise be disturbed, and that neither France nor Great Britain has any reason to worry over the conference.

The Novoe Vremya, after cataloguing the various suppositions advanced, declares it is useless to guess which of them received special attention and concludes sagely that it is sometimes good to have diplomatic questions discussed without the assistance of professional diplomats.

Liberal circles are inclined to look askance at the meeting, the pessimists thinking that it bodes ill to reform.

...RESIDENT'S DESPERATE ... TWO TREASURERS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DEMANDS IMMEDIATE RECALL OF PAMPHLETS BEARING HIS PHOTOGRAPH.

KELLY STILL IN OFFICE AND GOVERNOR IS THOUGHT TO HAVE APPOINTED S. W. MOORE.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 25.—President Roosevelt has objected to Spokane's literature bearing his portrait on the title page. Secretary Monroe of the chamber of commerce received a letter requesting the withdrawal of the brochure on the "Lewis and Clark" ... from publication. The letter declares that President Roosevelt is very much opposed to the appearance of his portraits in advertisements of any character and requests that the booklet of which the cover was inclosed be immediately recalled from circulation and notice be given when this was done.

President Goodell, of the chamber of commerce, is of the opinion that the request should be complied with. The chamber of commerce at a special meeting today canceled an order for 50,000 of the pamphlets and took steps to recall, as far as possible, those ... buted.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 25.—State Treasurer T. J. Kelly tonight filed with the secretary of state $881,000 of personal bond. The amount of bond required from Kelly by the governor and which he could not secure from the bonding companies was $750,000. The state executive council will meet tomorrow morning, at which time Kelly's bond will be considered along with that of S. W. Moore, who is thought to have been appointed treasurer by Governor Hoch.

Governor Hoch said tonight he was glad Kelly had secured the bond but intimated that the fight was not over yet. Governor Hoch refused to give an inkling as to his probable action at the executive council meeting tomorrow. He still has Kelly's resignation in escrow, which was presented to him immediately after the election on the condition that it should be accepted if any irregularities could be found in the state treasury. The governor has an expert accountant at work on the treasury books. Up to this time no announcement has been made as to his findings, however. The chances are that the state will have two treasurers after tomorrow and the courts will have to decide which is entitled to the office.

Resolutions Adopted by Special Gathering Last Night That Represented the Best Interests of Colorado Springs and of El Paso County at Large.

Resolutions were adopted at last evening's Good Roads convention, as follows:

First. That the citizens of El Paso county, hereby express their appreciation of the work of the officers of the National Good Roads association, and the encouragement received from the able and practical advice of the officers of the association towards the construction of better roads and streets in the city of Colorado Springs and county of El Paso.

Second. That the delegates to the state convention to be held in Denver July 27 and 28, be instructed to bring before said convention for its discussion the question of whether it is advisable to have suitable bills prepared for presentation to the legislature of this state authorizing the use of convict labor in the preparation of material for public roads and for the construction of the same.

Third. That the delegates to the convention at Denver, as aforesaid, be instructed to bring before said convention for its consideration and discussion the propriety of preparing a bill to be presented to the next legislature for action thereon, authorizing the county commissioners to recommend, open and construct roads upon their own initiative, without the petition required by law.

Fourth. That it is the sense of this convention that national and state aid should be rendered to the construction of proper public highways under proper restrictions for the economical expenditure of the money appropriated for such purposes.

Fifth. That it is the sense of this convention that the local side-tire ordinance should become effective at once.

Sixth. That the county of El Paso should be represented at the National Good Roads convention, to be held in St. Louis, Missouri, the third Wednesday in November, 1905, and to that end we recommend the appointment of delegates by the proper authorities of El Paso County Good Roads association, and we further urge upon the National Good Roads association their careful consideration of Colorado Springs as their meeting place for 1906 and we hereby extend a cordial invitation.

CHARLES MULFORD ROBINSON, Noted Expert in Matters Pertaining to Street Improvements.

El Paso county threw itself wholesouled into the work of the convention of the National Good Roads association and the great road experts who attended from elsewhere expressed themselves as pleased and proud at their reception at Colorado Springs.

When President J. A. Hayes, of the El Paso Good Roads association, called the convention to order at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the ball room of the Antlers hotel, he faced an assembly in which the county commissioners, the city council, the Real Estate exchange, the Chamber of Commerce and the Mechanics association were represented.

Not only was the audience highly representative, but every person present was a good roads enthusiast, capable of assimilating the valuable information which the experts might disseminate. There was not a dry minute in either session. The speakers found themselves repeatedly interrupted by eager inquirers after good roads information and, at the close of each address, there was a live discussion in which almost every one present became an enthusiastic participant.

"Nothing short of the National Good Roads association convention for Colorado Springs in 1906 will satisfy us. I never attended a convention at which more interest was manifested than today."—Henry Russell Wray, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Address of Welcome.

Chairman J. A. Hayes was felicitous in his welcoming remarks, saying:

We are most fortunate in having with us today the officers and members of the National Good Roads association.

We all fully appreciate what this organization has done and is doing for the country at large. In the absence of our mayor, who requests me to say how much he regrets that illness prevents him from being with us today, and as president of the El Paso Good Roads association, I take great pleasure in welcoming our guests in behalf of the county of El Paso and the city of Colorado Springs. It is a coincidence that the city of Colorado Springs and the local Good Roads association are at this time also entertaining such an authority on civic art as Charles Mulford Robinson, secretary of the Municipal Art League of America.

Paying Investment.

As to good roads, personally I have always maintained that the permanent improvement of city streets and county

COLORADO SPRINGS NEEDS

The park or plaza system for its residence and, probably, its business streets.

A grade of from one to two and a half feet from the curbing to the middle of the street.

Cement or stone curbing instead of plank.

A paved surface of from 30 to 36 feet.

Forty miles of macadamized roads surrounding the city.

Roads leading out of the city from 60 to 66 feet in width with a macadamized surface of from 16 to 20 feet.

System in laying out the road and regulation of grades.

To agitate the matter of state aid for road building.

To urge that the state lands available for good roads be sold and the money thus raised utilized.

A more general interest in this work.

"No feature of our meeting here has more impressed me than the aliveness to the situation manifested by the Gazette. I am proud of the Gazette. It is alive and clean from the first page to the last. Colorado Springs should appreciate and support a paper that boosts and builds and I shall say so in my lecture tonight."—Hon. W. H. Moore, President of the National Good Road Association, at the conclusion of yesterday afternoon's session of the convention.

roads, driveways and parks added more to the real value and attractiveness of any point than any other municipal or county investment. To this end I have always given my effort and influence in the advancement and work of our local Good Roads association. I remember in the early days here the building of roads in this county and state was a comparatively easy matter. By simply driving a few times across the plains we had what we considered a perfect roadway for those days. Now that the old plains have been fenced in, it becomes necessary to have drives and parks that will be unequaled by similar resorts anywhere in the world. General Palmer in building the numerous boulevards, bridle paths and public roadways has shown what may be done in the upbuilding of our country. We feel, however, that the example he has set us should be carried much further by the city and county. Your advice in this matter and co-operation we need today.

Mr. Moore Is Frank.

Hon. W. H. Moore, president of the National Good Roads association, in responding to Mr. Hayes' remarks, spoke very frankly of local conditions, Mr. Moore said:

"We have had a peaceful convention. The results will be the awakening of an enduring enthusiasm."—D. V. Donaldson.

Colorado Springs is not getting the best results from the money expended in the care of its streets. For instance, your broad and beautiful streets are perfectly flat when they should by all means have a rise of one to two and a half feet in the center. You have boards for curbing when anything other than stone or cement cannot possibly give satisfaction. No system, whatever, has been observed in laying out your roads. They are without regulation as to grades. They wind around and between railroad tracks. Practically the only good roads you have are those built by General Palmer who is one of the best citizens in the world. If you want to throw the gates of your beautiful city open to the world you must have good roads for forty miles around it and the way to get these roads is to take an authorized engineering force and let these trained experts outline a definite plan.

For your city streets I believe you should have the park system generally in vogue. Put your parks in the center of the street or along either side and every street so arranged will not only be made beautiful, but the expense of paving it will be so materially reduced that when it comes to paving your streets the taxpayers will be thoroughly in accord with the movement.

When you go to the legislature for state aid in road building do not ask for help for some particular road. Make your petition general. If you ask for only one or two roads the people of other sections of the state will say, "We are as good as you are and we object."

Find out what your reserves are in the way of available lands. I understand

"Every word said today was the true gospel of good roads. I am glad that as many representative people heard it as were here and I regret that the audience was not larger."—Albert W. Gray, Street commissioner.

that your good road lands are not segregated from the school lands. I hear that you have perhaps 1,000,000 acres that might be sold and the money at once converted into good roads. You should sift this matter to the bottom at once. Utilize every available cent.

Let the good roads train of the national association come to your city, hold a convention and build you a few miles of good road as a sample. We will bring Mr. Latimer of South Carolina, Congressman Walter P. Brown of Tennessee and other speakers of "national" prominence" and reputation who are working with us for better roads in the United States.

Mr. Moore spoke appreciatively of the large good done by bicycle and automobile enthusiasts in agitating for better roads. The wheel came in '62 and '63, but the first automobile did not arrive in this country until '93. At present $170,000,000 is invested in the manufacture of motor cars.

A Practical Speech.

Colorado Springs for the national convention in 1906!

This was the keynote of last night's session of the Good Roads convention.

The brilliant gathering at the Antlers hotel last night embracing the representative men and women of this city, attended by all social and business interests, the members of the city council, the county commissioners, club and society women, and the commercial bodies in force, unanimously adopted a set of resolutions which if executed will win the next National Good Roads convention for Colorado Springs.

A distinct "booster" spirit pervaded the meeting. The committee, consisting of T. J. Fisher, and Henry Russell Wray from the chamber of commerce, Fred S. Tucker and E. W. Warsop, from the Business men's association, Henry L.D. Wills and C. P. Bennett from the Real estate exchange, will do everything in its power to aid the delegation to be sent from this city to St. Louis next November in securing the 1906 convention for Colorado Springs.

"I think that there is no other city in the country which stands a better show in getting the next convention than does Colorado Springs," said Col. W. H. Moore, president of the National Good Roads association, "and if the people of your city take sufficient interest in sending a strong delegation to St. Louis next November, and give the delegates hearty support, you can make a successful fight for the next convention.

"The national convention in 1906 will mean 5,000 delegates, besides their families and friends, and the members of the press which the big eastern papers will send here to report the convention and from whom the city will receive broad and friendly advertising as the coolest summer convention city in the United States."

...RIKSDAG'S OPPOSITION TO GOVERNMENT'S POLICY ... REFERENCE TO NORWAY THE CAUSE.---KING'S ATTITUDE IS REGARDED TOO LENIENT.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 25.—The cabinet has resigned.

The special committee appointed by the riksdag to deal with the crisis which created the revolution today delivered its report. The committee declared unanimously that the government bill cannot be adopted in the form in which it was presented to the riksdag and proposes that the riksdag shall signify its willingness to negotiate with Norway for a dissolution of the union if the people elected anything requests a repeal of the act of union and a dissolution of the union or if such request is received from Norway after the Norwegian people by a plebiscite have declared in favor of a dissolution of the union.

The Terms Demanded.

The committee recommends that in the event of a dissolution of the union Sweden should insist on the following terms:

First—The establishment of a zone on each side of the frontier, separating the kingdoms within which the existing fortifications shall be razed and new fortifications may not be erected.

Second—The right of pasturing reindeer belonging to Swedish Lapplanders in north Norway.

Third—That the [illegible] both countries shall be secured against unjustifiable obstruction.

Fourth—That the status of Sweden in respect to foreign powers as established by treaty shall be clearly defined so that Sweden shall be completely freed from responsibility for Norway to other states.

The committee also regards an arbitration treaty between Sweden and Norway as desirable, although it does not consider it an essential condition [illegible]

The committee further proposes to authorize the government to raise a loan of $25,000,000 which can, by resolution of the riksdag, be made available for such readjustments and arrangements as may be necessitated by the new conditions.

Regarding eventual negotiations with Norway, the committee declared that, whatever may be demanded for the welfare and dignity of Sweden as a condition of the repeal of the act of union on the part of Sweden and for the recognition of Norway must be claimed and adhered to with vigor and determination.

STOCKHOLM, July 26.—Editorials in the newspapers this morning generally express satisfaction over the unanimity of the special committee in the report to the riksdag dealing with the Swedish-Norwegian crisis. According to well informed persons, the reason for this unanimity was that the committee had privately received information to the effect that Norway was willing to submit to a referendum the question of the establishment of a neutral zone and the razing of minor fortifications, but that she would not consent to a general election.

Prospects Peaceful.

It is understood that a referendum could be arranged to take place within a fortnight. Altogether the prospects are regarded as peaceful. Much depends on the character of the new ministry, but negotiations are expected to proceed smoothly.

Several prominent members of the riksdag yesterday privately expressed the opinion that Norway would agree to a plebiscite and that the question of fortifications would not raise serious difficulty. The forts are of recent construction, but of small military value and their retention was more a matter of [illegible] forbearance was displayed in the negotiations, no trouble would arise.

Many Swedish politicians are more concerned over the after effects of a dissolution, taking the ground that secession would so seriously weaken Norway in a military sense that she would be compelled to seek alliances which might lead to foreign complications.

The first news of the conditions of riksdag's special committee wished to impose on Norway caused strong resentment among a large section of the Norwegian people.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The question of the recognition of Norway as an independent state is now before President Roosevelt, having been referred to him by Assistant Secretary of State Adee.

TEXAS OIL FIRE SOON EXTINGUISHED

HOUSTON, Tex., July 25.—The fire in the Texas company's tanks at the Humble oil fields is practically extinguished tonight. There is still a bit of oil in the bottom of the eleventh tank but this will be burned out before morning. The charred remains of eight persons have been found and the search continues.

...SURANCE DENOUNCES METHODS. ...BIG INSURANCE COMPANIES

BOSTON, July 25.—Scathing criticism, pointed condemnation and fierce denunciation of the methods and course of the big insurance companies characterize the annual report of Frederick L. Cutting, commissioner of insurance for Massachusetts, issued today. The report is exhaustive in its review of methods employed by high insurance officials during the past several years, to whom he alludes in some instances as "Judases" and to one company as the "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde company" and contains a recommendation that the legislature at its next session take up the matter of deferred dividends and the relations between insurance companies and their allied trust companies and other questions with a view of compelling reform.

The report considers insurance in connection with "the gambling instincts of the age," and tells of the influence upon the officials of the insurance companies from the schemes for getting enormously rich with "graft by city, state, national officials, party legislators, congressmen, United States senators and courts subservient to the great moloch, money," that they have all have seen all about them, and they also saw tainted money eagerly sought by college and pulpit.

Commissioner Cutting names several companies of the Equitable Life, Mutual Life and the New York Life, termed the "big three," and the "racers," the report says that they have been largely responsible for the excessive expenses of the business "to...," the volume of which, and becoming the biggest, has led each to pour out money like water," and it recommends an immediate and complete reform of these in respect to the extraordinary deposits made by them with a few favored banks and trust companies.

Fraternal insurance and the case of the Royal Arcanum are dealt with at some length in the report, the commissioner expressing his opinion that the new rates recently adopted by that order and which caused such a stir within its ranks, are not too high.

RUSSIAN AND JAPANESE LINES SEVEN MILES APART. SMALL ENCOUNTER FRIDAY.

REPORT OF BOARD OF HEALTH SHOWS 34 DEATHS FROM YELLOW FEVER IN NEW ORLEANS.

FUSAN, July 25.—The past three months with both armies, has been the most quiet period of the entire war. There have been no engagements at the front, the only encounters being those of reconnoitering expeditions, sent out by both armies similar to that of last Friday, with a small total of losses.

The Russian and Japanese lines are seven miles apart. The Russians maintain a screen of cavalry outposts some miles in front of their trenches to guard against attacks. Reconnoitering forces from both sides traverse the neutral zone, frequently feeling the strength of the others at the front and making a small weekly list of killed, wounded and captured.

The Japanese sustained no losses but those of the Russians are supposed to have been nearly 100 on last Friday.

In the first encounter the Russian cavalry with its front side a thousand meters long, advanced upon the Japanese line until it came under fire when it retired in confusion and the infantry advanced.

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Tonight, in response to the request of the state board of health, the city board of health compiled the figures of suspicious and unreported cases of yellow fever and deaths, and the figures as issued by the state board show that, between July 13 and July 21 there were about 100 cases suspicious and positive and 20 deaths. Since then there have been 34 cases and 12 deaths up to the 24th, making all told 151 cases and 32 deaths.

There were two deaths today, making 34 to date. There are about 50 cases under treatment. Dr. George Young, of the United States marine hospital service, has been assigned to take charge of the inspection of trains and to co-operate with the states and localities which have instituted quarantine, and he will make his headquarters in Jackson, Miss.

to any possibility of conflict with the United States in the future, as suggested by some of the American press at the outbreak of the war, and Mr. Sato asked what could bring about such a conflict. When it was suggested that Japan might covet the Philippine islands he laughed and replied that Japan would not have them as a gift.

At the Waldorf Astoria.

Baron Komura and his party arrived early today from Chicago and proceeded at once to the Waldorf Astoria where they will be quartered for the present. There was no demonstration beyond the presence of a few Japanese merchants and members of the Nippon club, who shook hands with the members of the party. When the party arrived in New York from New Jersey, about 100 Japanese cheered the baron as he entered the carriage and was driven away.

Tomorrow President Roosevelt will be officially notified of Baron Komura's arrival, and later in the week the baron will make an informal visit to Oyster Bay.

There is no stated program mapped out for the distinguished Japanese pending the arrival of M. Witte, who is expected to arrive next week. Baron Komura will accept no invitations to dinners or public functions of any kind. Tonight he dined informally with Consul General Uchida at the Nippon club.

KOREA SENDS DELEGATE TO PEACE CONFERENCE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—One of today's arrivals on the steamer Alameda from Honolulu was P. K. Yoon, who is on his way to Washington for the purpose of acting as an official delegate appointed to look after the interests of Korea during the peace negotiations. Yoon is minister of the Korean Methodist church in Honolulu.

Rev. Yoon was disinclined to talk freely about his mission, as he feared that an expression of his sentiments might cause some ill feeling among the Japanese. He stated, however, that the object was to get the most favorable terms for Korea for the present with a view to obtaining independence in the future.

TEAMSTERS AT LAST GIVE UP THE GHOST

CHICAGO, July 25.—The Teamsters Joint council held a meeting tonight to consider the action of the members of the Employers association in declaring that no more union teamsters would be employed until the strike had been called off by all of the local unions in the city. The council decided that the strike should not be spread and ordered all of the local unions that had failed to obey the order to call off the strike to do so at once. In addition the council issued an order declaring that there are no longer any boycotted houses in the city.

MORE TEXAS OIL TANKS ON FIRE

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 25.—The loss suffered by the Texas company at the Humble oil field by the burning of 2,500,000 barrels of oil was further augmented today at Sour Lake where lightning struck a tank containing 140,000 barrels belonging to the same company and another tank containing 100,000 barrels, all of which will be destroyed. Loss $50,000.

WASHINGTON TOWN HAS COSTLY FIRE

CONNELL, Wash., July 25.—Two-thirds of Connell's business district is in ruins as the result of a fire which originated today in the Connell Progress building by the explosion of a bottle of acid. A box of matches ignited the wall paper and then the roof. The loss aggregates $150,000. Nine families are rendered homeless.

MUNICIPAL CODE DEALS CONVENTION

talk on "Practical Road and Street Construction, Needs of Colorado Springs and El Paso County."

Mr. Bradburn has had over 40 years experience in railroad and street construction, extending all over the country, and gave numerous hints on correcting mistakes in road and street building.

Mr. Bradburn said in part:

The question today is, not how far it is to a certain place, but how long will it take to get there, and how much will it cost? Good roads make the chief factor in transportation. The people of this country are awakening to the fact, and I am pleased to note that you are interesting the people of Colorado in this vital question. But your state must learn that to keep abreast of those in the east, it will have to appropriate funds for building and maintaining better roads. Your marvelous resources warrant greater expenditure.

Big Expenditures.

The state of New York last winter passed by an overwhelming majority, a constitutional amendment, which provided a bond issue of $101,000,000, to be employed [illegible] as an annual appropriation of $8,500,000. Maine, Vermont, Florida, Rhode Island, Texas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana and many other states provide for a road tax of three mills or over, but I am informed that you only allow the road fund three-sevenths of a mill, and Colorado, above all other states should have good roads, because you have more distinguished foreign visitors and a greater tourist travel than the rest; and Colorado Springs, with its beautiful, incomparable scenery and surrounding pleasure resorts, should have the finest system of roads in America, which will make it the Mecca for tourists.

I understand that you have approximately 130 miles of streets in your city, and none paved with material of permanent character, for gravel is not classified as pavement. Out of the $50,000 appropriated to the department of the street commissioner, $17,550 is expended in the maintainance and only $11,750 used in construction. Under these financial conditions, your city can never hope to have good streets, because the necessary repairs of poor streets use up the money that should be employed in the construction of a permanent system of streets.

Width of Streets.

Streets in the residence portion of a city for pavements between curb lines should not exceed from 32 to 36 feet, although the total width of the streets may be as much as 100 feet between fence lines. The sidewalks should be six feet from fence line to center of same, and six feet in width. Near each line row of trees should be planted, with a grass plot to fill up intervening spaces between fence line and curbing.

Your streets, many of them over 100 feet wide, are finely fitted for a perfect park and plaza boulevard system.

Curbing and Grade Lines.

I understand the property owners provide and put in place the curbing in front of their property. An ordinance should be enacted so as to specify a uniformity of curbing, either of cement or stone, which should be beveled for at least six inches from the top and sloping towards the property. The grade line of sidewalks on both sides of the street should be of the same level regardless of the contour of the ground.

Culverts at Intersections.

The wooden boxes now in use at street intersections require continuous repairs, are dangerous and very expensive, and should be dispensed with. Re-enforced concrete culverts should be used, which should be placed two or three feet below the surface of the ground in the form of a syphon so as to allow of at least 12 inches of earth to cover the same. The intake catch basin should be sunk sufficiently deep so as to form a settling basin.

Where re-enforced concrete culverts are not used, cylindrical Mitified pipe can be substituted. The wooden gutters conveying irrigation water are undermining and should be replaced by cement gutters.

Bridges and Culverts.

Wood as a floor system on steel bridges gives an uneven surface, requires continuous repairs, is dangerous and is very expensive. The present floor system on the steel bridges in this city wherever practicable should be dispensed with, and asphalt used in the place thereof. In place of the wooden stringers now used for the support of the floor of bridge, use iron beams on which a foundation of re-enforced concrete can be made to sustain the asphalt pavement.

I would suggest that in the future, steel tie concrete arches be placed in competition with steel culvert and bridge structures, and that re-enforced concrete be used in all culverts over two feet in diameter. I notice the concrete arch recently constructed on North Institute street is very weak and of bad construction and should be re-enforced. The design is imperfect and in case of a heavy rainfall the wing walls, which are too light, will be washed away.

County Earth Roads.

Nowhere have we seen better material for earth roads if properly constructed. Such a large percentage of gravel being mixed with the earth will make a fair road, and even in adobe sections deposits of fine gravel can be found which when mixed with the adobe will make fair roads. In the broken country where the hills are very short and abrupt the same should be graded down and the hollows filled. Concrete bridges should take the place of wooden bridges.

Raise Money for Roads.

The total assessed valuation of El Paso county is $24,138,000.00 and the road and bridge fund is only allowed seven-tenths of one mill taxation, giving $16,932.30 available for all road and bridge purposes, covering an area of 2,100 square miles. The general pro ratio for road and bridge purposes in other counties in this state and other western states is three mills which would give $72,567 per annum for road and bridge purposes; using this amount on a $600,000 bond issue at four percent interest, would give annual interest at four per cent on $600,000 equals $24,000, leaving $48,567 to be applied as a sinking fund yearly which in twelve and four-tenths years would pay the principal.

In conclusion you cannot build any road either earth, gravel, macadam or other material successfully without a steam roller weighing from eight to eighteen tons. You cannot keep a road in repair no matter what the material may be without a steam roller, but with the same you can reroll your earth road at a cost of $1.50 per mile.

Secretary Henry Russell Wray of the Chamber of Commerce read a brief but extremely interesting paper on "The Road-Making Question in Colorado Springs," prepared by Charles Mulford Robinson. The paper was in part as follows:

It seems to me that we have to recognize, at once, the peculiarity of the problem in Colorado Springs. It is evident, after brief examination, that there is very little heavy teaming here, that the larger use of the roadways is for pleasure driving and that there is very little relation between the density of traffic and the width of the streets. Now bearing these facts in mind, do we not have to admit that the paving problem here is by no means the same as in the larger manufacturing cities, and that a movement to beautify these wide streets has much better excuse than in most communities? For once, we may ask ourselves the pleasant question, What pavement is cheapest to lay and to keep in order and pleasantest to ride upon, rather than, What pavement will bear the heaviest burdens and will wear longest under constant use? For the greater part of this city, the questions of street paving come very close to those questions concerned in the making of park roads. Colorado Springs is a great resort for health seeking and pleasure loving people. Its destiny lies in that direction. More and more it is to become a resort and just as the parks of great cities are provided for those who seek health and love beauty, so nearly all of Colorado Springs, to realize the full possibilities of its future, must tend. It seems to me, to become a park-like city.

The question is never simply one of good roads, but of roads good for the place and good for the purpose for which they are to be used. We should be ready, if necessary, to make new rules to suit new conditions and we should bring to the problems here presented all the enthusiasm and interest that novelty ought to arouse in us.

Night Session.

At night a brilliant audience filled the ball room. Every available seat was taken. All of the speeches were appreciated and there was frequent applause.

Col. T. P. Rixey, lecturer for the National Good Roads association, was the first speaker introduced by Chairman Hayes. Col. Rixey spoke interestingly of the good work inspired by the National Association's efforts at Jackson, Tenn., and elsewhere. He insisted that the $20,000,000 which Americans spend annually in Switzerland and the $7,000,000 which they spend each year in Norway and Sweden would be spent in Colorado if the same excellent roadways which [illegible] all abroad threaded the Rocky mountains.

P. B. Stewart's Address.

Philip B. Stewart, the second speaker, was greeted by a rousing burst of applause, and gave a strong, business-like speech. Mr. Stewart spoke in part as follows:

[illegible] regret that many of you who are present this evening did not get the benefit of the fine addresses delivered before this convention this afternoon. Col. Moore and Mr. Bradburn have had long experience in the work of educating the public on the question of good roads, and their advice is very valuable.

"I have investigated the manner in which the city's money has been used in the past, and I must say, without meaning to give offense in any quarter, that the funds set aside to build and maintain roads and streets have not been wisely or advisedly employed. An average of $40,000 per year has been appropriated for the last ten years, and over $100,000 dollars has blown from this city in dust, gold dust, into the state of Kansas during that time.

"Let us take practical means to immediately build a system of macadamized roads and streets from, and in, this city."

Stereopticon Views.

Hon. W. H. Moore gave a most interesting lecture on the "Roads of the World" illustrated with beautiful stereopticon views.

"Of all the pictures from everywhere I saw none which looked as good to me as those taken in the community of Colorado Springs," C. P. Bennett remarked after the meeting had adjourned, and that seemed to be an impression rather generally shared by those present.

Mr. Moore in a few minutes' time gave an excellent idea of the road making of all nations of the earth, inclusive of the famous road from Babylonia to Egypt and the Appian road of Rome which, it built today, would cost $100,000 per mile and which is 150 miles in length. Mr. Moore stated that there is not a street in any great city of Turkey or China which is sufficiently wide to admit of a street car system. He criticised Americans for not building durable bridges. In his opinion nothing better could be done with any state's convict labor than to utilize it in preparing the material for road building, even where it was not desired to have convicts appear on the highways.

[illegible] WRECK ON DENVER GRADE

DENVER, July 25.—Two men were killed and two injured in a freight wreck on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad today three-quarters of a mile west of Bocca, a small station near Durango.

The dead are:

H. SMITH, engineer.

E. M. ALLISON, fireman.

The injured: G. A. Cuthbert, engineer, E. A. McAllister, brakeman.

The wrecked train was a double-header running north. Rounding a curve at a sharp speed, both engines left the rails and turned over and many cars were piled up on them and Smith and Allison were crushed and scalded to death beneath their engine.

HEADS LIST OF SIXTY-FIVE PLAYERS IN CHAMPIONSHIP EVENT—FAIRBANKS QUALIFIES.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Guy A. Miller, former star pitcher of the University of Michigan baseball team, today led a field of 65 in the qualifying round of the seventh annual western golf championship at the Glenview links with a total of 157 strokes for 36 holes.

Tied at 162 strokes behind him were R. L. Hunter, of Midlothian, and W. E. Clow, Jr., of Chewtonia. The former in the morning made a round in 76 which was the best of the day, but, returning ten more in the afternoon, spoiled a good chance to capture the gold medal. The latter trophy went to Miller. H. Chandler Egan was not in his usual good form and took 168 strokes for the 36 holes. Twenty-eight clubs from Chicago and Denver on the west, Pittsburg on the east and Nashville on the south were represented in the field of players. Among the 32 that qualified are Walter Fairbanks, Denver, 171, and F. E. H. Talbot, Wichita, Kas., 173. For tomorrow's play Fairbanks is matched with K. L. Ames, of Glenview.

This is circus day.

But who needs to be reminded of that fact? There is something in the very air of circus day that breathes of sawdust, and spangles, and red lemonade, and elephants, and laughing hyenas and acrobats, and airy, fairy nothings, and a thousand other things associated in dreams and in reality with white tents.

To be sure, there are circus days and circus days. There is the circus day that brings the little, two-by-four ring show, on a modest scale, honestly lives up to its pretensions. But, after all, there is only one really big circus day, and that is when the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth comes to town. And that is not surprising, in view of the magnitude of this great amusement institution. To anyone who really cares to study the difference between this and other shows, there will never be a better opportunity than will be afforded today. Only to see it all to make a fair and just estimate of the resources of the show, and in that way be prepared to make the inevitable comparison—the student must have got up very early this morning. If he did so, he saw some surprising things suggestive of magnitude. He saw down town double length cars filled with the paraphernalia of the show; he saw wagon after wagon unloaded and started with [illegible] for the show grounds; he saw 72 elephants and 20 camels lope down the planks of their big box cars and he marked nearly 50 cages of other animals lined up for the procession to the show grounds. A little later, when he goes out to the show grounds, he will see the contents of those great wagons metamorphosed into mammoth pavilions; he will see a vast hippodrome tent, with seats for 14,500 persons, and furnished with opera chairs and all the comforts of a modern theater; he will see a world of aerial rigging on which a great company of midair performers will give a series of startling acts; he will see three rings and two stages which hundreds of riders and acrobats and specialists from all parts of the world will utilize to present, at the afternoon and night performances, the very limit of circus accomplishments; he will see the remarkable apparatus used by Mlle. Mauricia de Tiers, who loops the loop in an automobile and by Volo, the Venturus, who leaps the chasm on a bicycle; he will find in the adjoining pavilion, which is itself larger than the main tent of any other circus, the most complete collection of wild animals in America, including four specimens of the almost extinct giraffe and the only bi-horned rhinoceros in America; and in the stables he will discover over 500 horses of almost priceless value. If these things do not satisfy him in regard to the surpassing magnitude of the show, he is past conviction, or, worse still a dyspeptic.

Owing to magnitude of this year's show, the street parade has been dispensed with and the incitements of circus day will really begin with a wonderful free show on the exhibition grounds between 10:30 and 11 o'clock. This [illegible] which is given by the Weitzmanns, the most remarkable high-air gymnasts ever seen in America, will be repeated prior to the evening show. There is no charge for it whatever.

The first performance will begin at 2 o'clock and the final one at 8 p. m. Doors will be open an hour previously to afford visitors an opportunity to visit the menagerie, to enjoy the music and dancing of the Swedish troupe of musicians and dancers, and to see the sights, the nuggets and other interesting features in the zoological department. The spectacle "The Durbar of Delhi," begins promptly at 2 and 8. Owing to the great amount of paraphernalia used in their performances, and the time required to remove it, the Dip of Death and Volo acts will be given in the early part of the program at the night show.

Tickets may be secured at Robinson's drug store, 102 E. Pike's Peak avenue, and on the show grounds, North Cascade street, at the opening hours.

OPENING BILL AT EMPIRE.

The Empire is to Colorado Springs what the Orpheum is to Denver. One of the best bills ever given at the local playhouse will be the opening number, Monday, July 31. On the bill are the Rodrigues, a Mexican troupe of acrobats direct from Mexico, now playing the western affiliated circuit; Frank Watson, the California tenor, who has selected for his opening song, "Every Day Is Sunday When the Heart Beats True," which will be illustrated by motion pictures. The first song ever illustrated in Colorado with motion pictures.

Hanlan and Scanlan, the greatest of all comedy musical artists, direct from the Orpheum at New Orleans, follow and the feature act is the Roberts Four, they being considered the greatest act [illegible] in western vaudeville.

The Empire theater orchestra will render several popular and pleasing selections which will add to the refinement of the opening program. The motion pictures will be Edison's latest subjects and the Kinetoscope will be operated by Prof. Dan Martinecourt. Performances at 3 p. m., 7:30 and 8:45 p. m. Admission 10c; loge seats 20c; box seats 25c. Grand opening Monday, July 31.

"FOLKS AT PINEYVILLE."

Another good production was given at the Opera house last night by the Eastern Fountain company and the usual big house witnessed the performance.

"The Red Dagger" was the play presented and again scored the same hit that the play made earlier in the season when it was produced by the same company. Tonight the company appears in a southern romantic comedy drama entitled "Folks at Pineyville." The play has never been produced in this city, but wherever it has been given has always received the highest of praise both from the press and public. All the members of the company have strong and prominent parts and our theater goers may look forward to a high-class and artistic production.

The popular prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents for the night performances and 10 and 20 cents for the matinees that are charged will also be continued throughout the entire engagement.

LILIES OF HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

In a recent interview with Mrs. Lily Langtry, she very wisely said:

"The fact that I believe in the superior force of mind over matter does not blind me to the truth that the foundation of every successful life is good health; that the keystone to physical beauty is perfect physical health.

"A sick woman cannot be a beautiful woman, nor can she be anything but what we English call a poor-spirited woman.

"To a great extent a woman's beauty is measured by her vitality—by her health.

"Work, Sunshine, Exercise, Water and Soap; Plain, Nourishing Food; Lots of Fresh Air; and a Happy, Contented Spirit—there, you say, 'honest and true,' is my working rule for youth, youthful spirits and youthful looks."

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make-up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending twenty one cents in one cent stamps for paper-bound volume, or thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, and addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can always be relied upon to cure when everything else fails," writes Mrs. Dr. Nielsen of 262 Langley Avenue, Chicago, Ills., "It is a certain cure for female troubles, diseases in their worst forms. I suffered for years with ulceration, intense pains and a dreadful backache, which unfitted me for my work. Finally I grew so ill had to keep to my bed. In this extremity I used 'Favorite Prescription' for three months and then was well. Only those who have passed through such [illegible] of sickness as I have will understand how much I value Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Dr. Pierce offers $500 reward for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which he cannot cure. All he asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure. No substitute for "Favorite Prescription" offers so much.

DROWNED IN THE SPOKANE RIVER

IRVING S. SMITH, FORMER COLORADO CITY BOY, SINKS TO WATERY GRAVE IN FATHER'S SIGHT.

Irving S. Smith, the 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Smith, former residents of this city, was drowned in the Spokane river in Washington, July 15.

According to the Spokesman-Review the young man was in bathing with a companion and started to swim across the stream. When he had almost reached the bank, he called for help and immediately sank in about 15 feet of water. The father, who was near, could plainly see the body at the bottom, and it was an hour and a half before an iron instrument being brought was secured and the body recovered. Mr. Smith and family have been away from Colorado City about one year.

STOLE ENOUGH JEWELRY TO START IN BUSINESS

The sleeping rooms of W. P. Mitchell and John Canfield were robbed Saturday afternoon and the thief is still at large with most of the booty.

Mitchell and Canfield's rooms adjoin each other in the Telephone building on North Fifth street. The burglar entered by the means of false keys and took a $30 suit of clothes, a $35 gold watch and a pair of shoes from Mitchell, and a $40 gold watch and $12 in currency from Canfield.

The theft was discovered late in the afternoon and the police were notified. They kept the matter strictly quiet and later in the evening located the suit of clothes in a Colorado Springs pawn shop where they had been pawned by a negro.

GETS VALUABLE MINE IN TONOPAH REGION

P. De R. Cass arrived in the city yesterday from Tonopah mining district. He was lucky in locating several good claims. One he says is worth $250,000, being a fraction of one of the best mines in the district. He made a trip into Death valley where the thermometer registered 120 degrees in the shade and secured some good property.

Water, he says, may be secured almost anywhere in Death valley at a depth of from four to six feet as the whole valley lies 250 feet below sea level, and while it is somewhat salt, yet it will sustain life.

WM. J. MARTIN LAID TO REST YESTERDAY

The funeral of William J. Martin, the Colorado Midland conductor, who died in New York city last Thursday, was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon from St. Mary's Catholic church. The remains were laid to rest in Fairview cemetery where the beautiful ritual services of the Fraternal Order of Eagles were performed at the grave by the officers of aerie No. 143. The members of the local Order of Railway Conductors were present and manifested their regard with many beautiful floral tributes.

CHINA AND THE LAND GRABBERS.

DIPLOMACY is a fearful and wonderful thing. By means of it the great Powers of the earth indulge in sharp practice which, in analogous cases between individuals, would send a man to jail. For instance, suppose two men should indulge in a fist fight on another man's vacant lot, and after the fight had ended the combatants should decide between themselves to retain or dispose of the lot as they might see fit, without consulting the owner. Then when the owner served notice on them that he would not consider this arrangement binding, suppose the two fighters should express astonishment at his presumptuousness.

This is a parallel to the case of Russia, Japan and China in the discussion of the future of Manchuria. For the last seventeen months Russia and Japan have been using the Chinese province of Manchuria as their battle arena. Excepting the recent skirmishing in the island of Sakhalin the operations of the entire land forces of both belligerents have been confined to Manchuria, and no engagement has been fought outside its borders.

The nearest the Chinese government has ever come to parting with Manchuria was when it signed a ninety-nine year lease of Port Arthur with Russia, at the same time granting the Czar a right of way through the province for a railroad to connect the formed town with the Trans-Siberian road at Harbin. But China has never relinquished her sovereignty over a foot of Manchurian territory, and even Russia never had the assurance to claim title there.

Now that terms of peace are to be arranged China has sent an identical note to the Powers informing them that she will not recognize any arrangement regarding Manchuria concerning which she has not been consulted beforehand. The Japanese have repeatedly promised that if victorious they intended to restore the province to its rightful owner, but of late there has been some talk of certain conditions which the victorious nation would impose, favorable to its own people. It is said, too, that Russia will forfeit her sphere of influence in Manchuria only on condition that Japan be given no privileges there not accorded to all of the other Powers.

At this distance it would seem that there is no room for argument in the matter. China has owned Manchuria for a thousand years; her title has never been questioned, and yet, because China is weak, each of the belligerents seeks to gain an unwarranted advantage in the province, and each would, if possible, steal it absolutely. If such a transaction took place between three individuals in this country somebody would get a term in jail. But things are done differently in the world of diplomacy.

THE STRATTON MONUMENT.

IT IS distinctly gratifying to the people of Colorado Springs to learn that a costly and appropriate monument is to be erected over the grave of the late W. S. Stratton in Evergreen Cemetery. A Chicago sculptor has been commissioned to execute a monument to cost $5,000, and the design is to be one that will be expressive of Mr. Stratton's character as philanthropist and public benefactor.

W. S. Stratton occupied a peculiar place in the life of Colorado Springs. With the exception of the founder of the city he did more for it than any other man. Riches came to him late in life, but they did not disturb his balance. He remained in Colorado Springs and spent his money in a way that vastly benefited the city. This was done not by making gifts but by business investments which gave a great impetus to the growth of the place.

Without him Colorado Springs never would have secured its splendid street railway system, nor the beautiful park at its southern terminus which remains one of the chief attractions to the lover of outdoor life. His investments in real estate invariably resulted in public good. The Mining Exchange building would be a credit to any city four times the size of this. His purchase of the lot where the City Hall now stands made it possible for the Council to erect that beautiful building. It was through Mr. Stratton's generosity that a site for the Federal building was chosen in the most accessible place.

W. S. Stratton's memory will always be cherished in Colorado Springs for he was a true friend of the city, and no little public interest will attach to the erection over his grave of such a monument as is planned.

JAPANESE DOMINATION.

THE first Napoleon once said that in fifty years the world would be either Cossack or republican, but the half-century has long since elapsed and the prophecy is still unverified. Russia has passed the zenith of her power and is now declining rapidly. She will always be a first-class nation, but not until sweeping reforms have been granted and the people have an actual and important voice in the government will Russian strength rise to its former level.

The progress of republicanism has been far greater. The United States, which stood for nothing except an idea when Napoleon uttered his prophecy, is now one of the most powerful nations in the world and the greatest exemplar of popular government. France has become a republic, and England, though still nominally a monarchy, is governed in fact by the people. Save in Russia and Turkey popular ideas hold sway throughout Europe, and it is the people rather than the crowned kings that rule.

The sudden rise of Japan to dizzy heights has caused a good deal of uneasiness in Europe over the possibilities of the "yellow peril." Certain statesmen, mostly Russians and Germans, profess to believe that the Japanese will in the course of time mould China into a powerful military nation, and with the aid of her uncounted millions overrun the entire western world. The idea sounds plausible, but a little reflection will convince almost anybody that it is really an absurdity. There is no more danger of the yellow races devastating the West as Tamerlane did than there is of the United States overrunning Europe.

But just the same the position of Japan as a first-rate Power is fixed, for the present generation at least, and in future the white nations will have to reckon with her in all questions affecting the Far East. Japan is as strong commercially as she is in a military sense, and the real "yellow peril" is likely to be the capture of the Chinese market by the slant-eyed commercial travelers from the Mikado's realm. If this ever happens the Japanese will have conquered the world as completely as they are ever likely to conquer it.

The personal note from the Czar which M. Witte is bringing to President Roosevelt is not exactly the same kind of a Russian note as those with which European bankers have been flooded, but it would probably bring more at auction than most of the others.

Chauncey M. Depew is coming home from Europe to explain his connection with the Equitable. Luckily for Chauncey, he has just been elected to another term in the Senate. Otherwise he might find it rather hard to secure this kind of a "vindication."

A St. Louis society woman was attacked in the street by a cow the other day and painfully injured. In St. Louis they allow cows to run around the streets in the hope of deluding people into thinking that the place is a country summer resort.

The widow of the late William Ziegler, who left his entire fortune of $30,000,000 to an adopted son, is contesting his will on the ground that he was insane. She probably never doubted his sanity when he was making the money.

A New York clergyman says that women are largely responsible for the financial rascality of our times. It is a little surprising to learn that Wall Street is run by women.

It is said that a plot has been formed in Russia to put the little Romanoff baby on the throne. He couldn't be a greater failure as a ruler than his father has been.

M. Witte may be right in saying that Russia will continue to fight for years, but if so it will be the people fighting for better government.

In Ellis County, Kansas, where there is a big Russian settlement, a new postoffice has been named Togo. Look out for a race war in Kansas.

Press Opinions

ANOTHER SIGN OF PEACE.

Despite the rumors of war still heard in the east, all signs continue to point to peace. In a New York theater the other night a party of Japanese occupied one of the boxes when a couple of Russian dancing girls, dressed as Cossacks and carrying Russian flags, appeared to do their turn. Instantly the box party unfurled a Japanese flag, and after waving it lustily cast it upon the stage at the feet of the Russian maids. Then the dancers, picking it up, waved it with their own flags as they went on with the dance, while the Japs joined in the universal applause.—Boston Herald.

THE TIMES IN KANSAS.

With the whirl of her threshing machines in full swing, with a lynching bee in prospect, with a posse of 200 citizens chasing a male Carrie Nation loaded with dynamite, with former Congressman Funston arrested for shooting off inflammatory speeches, with Tom Lawson, Governor La Follette and District Attorney Jerome delivering an enfilading fire against Wall street, the trusts and the grafters, with the ruins of her legislative castles crashing around her ears, and with the gentle cyclone cavorting through her whiskers, Kansas—bleeding, vociferous, howling Kansas—is having the time of her delirious career.—Pittsburg dispatch.

LAWSON'S PICTURESQUE ROLE.

Thomas Lawson is interesting and picturesque. In the role of reformed pirate he has certainly shed a flood of light on the working of the "System," which has moved the American people to the depths. No amount of assault on Lawson's personality will outweigh these contributions to the literature of graft.—Leadville Herald-Democrat.

COULD GIVE CARNEGIE POINTERS.

If Mr. Carnegie really wants to die poor, he might obtain valuable pointers from the honorable gentlemen who recently attempted to establish a Democratic newspaper in Teller county.—Cripple Creek Times.

LET THE NAMES FIT.

Secretary Bonaparte eighty-differs with the poet as to the significance of a name. Surely Prometheus and Vestal are far more fitting names for those squadron colliers than old Nestor or crazy Orestes or the commonplace Diamond and Pearl. We think we're going to like Skipper Bonaparte.—Boston Herald.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR ATHLETES.

The world's champion pole vaulter is working as a waiter in a Terre Haute, Ind., restaurant. Young men who are planning to go to college for the purpose of becoming champion pole vaulters may well be encouraged. There are many restaurants in the land, and good waiters are always needed.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ROOM FOR "THE WORTHY LIFE."

We have now the "strenuous life," the "simple life," the "abundant life," and the "efficient life," not to speak of the Equitable Life. Even the generously endowed Thomas cat with his proverbial nine lives can no longer outlive us.—Columbia State.

SWINGS ONLY ONE WAY.

The open door, Little Willie, is China's door looking toward America. America's door looking toward China is a lid, with a tall, thin man with a sun sitting on it.—New York Mail.

WHERE THE CORN GROWS TALL.

F. A. Rich and wife satisfied the inner mankind by sumptuously entertaining Mr. and Mrs. John Atkinson Sunday for a noonday meal.

Hon. J. T. Rich and wife entertained Dr. H. Baker and wife Sunday for a visit and noonday filling of the inner mankind.

William Rogers, who went to western Canada about three years ago, is in a critical condition—viz: a wild pony kicked him, breaking both legs and otherwise bruised him severely.

Sunday being the stream of time, from the valley Lewis Scadland, a fine young man, was observed Sunday meandering down to a neighboring farmhouse, when he smiled on a fair maid with rosy cheeks and curled black hair, sweet as sugar.

Mrs. F. Goodell is enjoying the comfort of a fine new carriage and is a present from her kind husband.

Miss Mayme and Hallie Barber are two young girls ages 11 and 12 respectively, are the most industrious girls of their age as they can be seen daily cultivating corn for their kind parents to perform their duty well. Such girls are a credit to the country and the progress of American greatness.—Lake Township Correspondence of Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette.

[illegible] Wife

A Novel of the Divorce Problem

By H. A. MITCHELL KEAYS.

Copyright, 1904, by McClure, Phillips & Company. All Rights Reserved.

HE TOOK up the letter, and felt it with a strange thrill. What could it possibly be about? Money? Oh, no. Aside from the question of her pride, he was assured that she was saving steadily. Katharine was not a reckless woman, and personal display had no appeal for her. His brow contracted as he recalled certain episodes in connection with his own domestic finances. Isabel had a genius for extravagance, and though she made some money by her singing, that merely opened up an excuse for further outlay, she was always buying beautiful things which she assured him she paid for herself, but which he invariably discovered later on the bills it was assumed to be a high privilege for him to pay. It had been once; it grew monotonous.

He stared at the letter, with a strange expression growing slowly in his blue eyes. Why did he dread opening it? What could it be about? Whitney—? Could anything be—

He tore it open. It was short. "I think you ought to know that Whitney is very ill. The doctors do not conceal from me that the result is in doubt. He has asked for you. Katharine Mackemer."

He stepped blindly to the outer office. "Slingerland, find out what time the next train leaves for Glenedge. Quick, man, quick!"

He stumbled back to his chair, and dropped into it, staring helplessly at the wall in front of him, his clever, impulsive hands lying limp on his knees as if they were detached from him.

"At 4:05, sir. In ten minutes," said Slingerland.

"Get a hack. Get me to the North Western—Quick!"

He caught the train, and for people fifty minutes filled his old place in it. The men with whom he had [illegible] down back and forth, morning and evening, trooped in again in the same old way, but they slid awkwardly past his seat. What was he doing there? They were, in general, a simple, home-loving lot, and they thought of his wife and little boy. Smart man, Mackemer, but had made a botch of that business. A stranger dropped into the seat with him, and began to talk animatedly about the foreign policy of the government. "Ah, I see you're a rabid anti-expansionist," said he, presently.

"Me?" He stared at the man. An anti-expansionist—he, who was ready to stump the earth with the American flag. What had he been saying? He could not at all remember.

It must be very cold. People hurried in with pinched faces and banged the car door viciously behind them. Cold? Why, of course it was cold. Eight below on the front porch this morning, and that thermometer of West's always registered a little high.

What front porch? West's thermometer? His brain seemed to gasp and shiver as he realized that for a few intensely real moments something had dropped entire, like a cast-off dream, from his life. He had thought himself again the Mackemer of three short—long—eternally vanished years ago.

Rose Hill—the name set all his nerves quivering, but the train hurried away from the home of the dead, yet his mind clung to it as if it belonged there. What was the matter—what was this terrible load that oppressed him that he could not shake off? His heart contracted suddenly. Whit little Whit was ill! The doctors said—he closed his eyes, and forgot everything, save the rolling of the wheels beneath him, with their endless grind, grind, grind. It was his heart they were grinding, fine and finer. "The mills of the gods—" he repeated, heavily, and in that instant the eyes of Isabel seemed to look into his, soft, seeking, seductive. And for the first time he flung the thought of her furiously from him. What right had she here—now?

"Glenedge!" He jumped up, and was out on the platform before anyone else, his feet carrying him rapidly, alone without conscious volition. And as he turned the familiar corner, with a rush of agony, he remembered the afternoon that he had come home for the last time. There the gay tiving little figure had met him on the bicycle; he saw it again, through dim eyes, tearing up the long road, lurching recklessly from side to side, courting disaster, and shouting with delight at each new experience of it. And now! The street was deserted today, yet in a moment he almost ran into a man who hurried along, his figure set rigidly against the force of the wind. "Hullo, Van Wag," he called out, glad of a familiar face. He had always liked Van Wagner. What a saint in patience and tenderness the rough man had been to that invalid woman all these years! "How's your wife?"

The man's heavy lip quivered. "She's dead, Mr. Mackemer." His voice was dead, too.

"Dead?" Mackemer repeated. "Dead. Why, I'm so sorry." His own fear made him in a moment kin to Van Wagner's sorrow. "Oh, Van Wag, my little boy's ill."

"I know," said the man. "I went up at noon to enquire for him, and I saw your wife. She was so good to—to—" he walked away, and Mackemer hurried on. "Awful curse, an invalid wife," he muttered petulantly. "He'd have made lots of money in that corner store if it hadn't been for her—always wasting his time over her." He tried to drive the thought of Van Wagner away; it harassed him curiously. But there drifted persistently back to within the range of his memory the stories he had heard of them years before—the fresh flower for her every morning, the lover-like courtesies from the one to the other—wonderful in lives which had seemed destined from their lot to commonness, to gross enjoyment, or not at all. The rough man had been gradually transformed into a gentleman of the finest type, whose unselfish ministry to his wife was only equalled in heroism by the courage with which she struggled to deny her suffering that she might see him smile. Strangest fact—that for Van Wagner life with her had been not only redemptive and ennobling, but supremely, exquisitely satisfying. Marry again? Oh, no! Van Wag would never do that. The man had begun the long watch without the door of eternity, which he believed, no doubt, would one day swing wide for him, and let him in to seek her. There was already in his face the look of the dog which, barred outside, listens to his master's step within, and unwearied waits.

Good God! To long like that for death. Death! Mackemer thrust the word from him—but it assailed him and drove him on with throbbing heart toward his child—Whit—Whit!

The car as he passed his eyes made critical survey of the changes in the place since he had seen it last. Rosebrugh had built on that lot, then, after all. But the house was too squat, and with that ridiculous tower! What had possessed the fellow? Probably he had acted the architect himself. No, it must have taken a man skilled in the torture of wood and stone to accomplish a monstrosity like that.

Ah, the charm of this winter landscape! The veriest boor must feel his slow pulse stir to the abundant beauty of nature on a summer's day, the fragrant fields basking beneath the blue, the green leaf, the gold of sunshine, the passionate appeal of prodigal color—but the call for recognition was to more strenuous stuff when the dead leaves rattled in the north wind. That thought captured Mackemer as his eye swept the snow-fronted hill beyond, with its thin black line of trees lifting their winter-bound branches to the cold remoteness of the sky. A bare tree had a marvelous fascination for him. The mingling of grace and austerity of severe outline with the intricate lacing of twig and bough in forms as delicate as the frost pictures on the pane always awoke in him the memory of his mother. Why? He never could discover. He could just remember her—delicate, graceful, with the devoutness of a nun allied to the arts of a coquette. His father—ah, he had been told that he was a strange, stern man, curiously deficient in a sense of humor when it came to the question of appreciating his pretty little wife's clever affectations of piety. For there were, unfortunately, other diversions in which she indulged with a devotion quite equal to that which she accorded to her little comedy of religion. His thoughts of his father had always been antagonistic, but he had lately felt strange stirrings in himself of the man who had left to the world a son who had seemed so secure a reproduction of his mother.

A lonely group of pines moaned as Mackemer passed—"Nature's violins—" he thought, and shivered, for the music of a violin was a joy to him at times too near to agony to bear. And then, in the next moment, at the turn of the road, the house stood out before him plainly, but the sudden sight of it blinded him; he looked away while his feet drew him steadily nearer. The dear familiarity of it struck in upon his heart—he could have sobbed like a hurt child to find himself so close to it once more. But before he had time to realize that he had reached the gate, his hand stretched instinctively to the latch, and then for the moment he stood still. Ah, after all, flien, Katherine had not altered the direction of the path as she had always wished to do. Why not? It all looked as if he had but left it this morning; even the dry leaves were huddled in the same little dips and hollows of the lawn from which he had so often raked them.

At the door of his finger sought his latch-key pocket; then the blood in his body turned suddenly hot as he remembered, and rang the bell like any alien.

The door opened; everything turned dark to him. Someone stood there, and he heard a voice murmur. Was it his own? He followed the figure to the library on feet that seemed to have the weight of pyramids attached to them, and when he became aware that he was alone, he sat down, so glad that he need no longer bear himself up. But presently he straightened. What nonsense was this he had been going through? He was tired—he had had a hard day—that suit of Drysdale's, and then—then—ah, Whit, Whit! In an instant his hardly assumed control deserted him. He could have moaned aloud. Why were they so long? Why was he not taken to his child at once? He rose in angered impatience as the sound of a step in the hall reached him, and Dr. Regester entered the room. He greeted Mackemer politely, but his eyes were cold, and deliberately absent from the interview in which his features were so actively engaged. "You will, of course, be anxious to know at once how Whitney is," he began, in an expressionless voice. "All that I can say is, that there is no perceptible change for the worse since last night."

"Then he is not any better?" said Mackemer, breathlessly.

Regester shook his head. "You see, it's like this—" he went into explanatory detail as to the disease and its course.

Mackemer sat still, looking into the upturned crown of his hat, apparently unmoved, and, free for a moment to examine him, Regester studied him with critical eyes. The man had changed greatly. The face was sharper—the lines about the mouth colder. Had he abridened or had he acquired a reserve which had once been [illegible] his nature?

"Then you have done everything?" said Mackemer, at last. He did not raise his eyes.

"Everything. Dr. Starr was here this morning."

"And now, can I see him?"

Regester hesitated, and Mackemer looked up sharply, as the eyes of the two men met [illegible] tagonism between them.

"You understand that my wife sent for me," began Mackemer, and then gripped his lips. His wife! Oh, that of all things he should have been betrayed into saying that!

"Yes, we thought you ought to know," said Regester in a voice that hit, and Mackemer flushed hotly. His child—and they barred him behind that "we." But his dignity held; he looked directly at Regester as he said, quietly: "His mother wrote that he asked for me. Will you tell her that I am here, and ask if I may see him now?" But the request was altogether a command, and Regester hesitated, stubbornly. He was thinking only of Katharine and of the fearful conflict he had watched in her before she had written that note to her husband.

"Perhaps you do not realize what a great strain it will necessarily be to the child to see you again," he said, sharply.

Mackemer looked at him. His eyes were dim with tears. "Perhaps you forget that I am Whitney's father, and that he knows it," he answered, simply. And, in spite of interdict, Regester's heart went out to him in quick sympathy. He left the room without further word, and it was some minutes before he returned. "Whitney is having a very bad turn," he explained, in a disturbed voice. "I think you might just as well see him. And his mother has told him that you are here."

But Mackemer drew back. "Then that is it," he said, despairingly. "I had better go away. I have done him harm already."

"No, no! He must see you now. Nothing can be worse than this. And perhaps you can help. His mother said that." He hurried Mackemer up the stairs.

But when the bedroom door had closed after them everything turned black to him again. He felt Regester place a chair for him, he caught unsteadily at the back of it, and stood there until against the whiteness of the piled-up pillows there gradually defined itself to him a thin little face flushed high with fever. It seemed to him that he had stood there for age-enduring moments before he at last saw it with its bright, appallingly restless eyes.

"Papa, Papa!"

He pushed the chair aside and knelt down beside the bed.

"Oh Whit, Whit, Papa's here. Papa's here!"

The child moved a faint little finger toward him and the father took the frail hand in his strong, cool grasp.

"I'm so sick, Papa—so sick!" The words came dry and dull from the parched lips.

"I know, Whit." He stroked the boy's hair tenderly with deft fingers. An intense quietness fell upon him. "Don't worry to talk, old chap. You want a drink? Here, that's it. Now, then," oh, so softly, softly, "let me smooth that pillow."

And the child yielded blissfully to the magic of his voice and touch. There was a long silence after that—only his boy and himself a reality to Mackemer. But the bright, open eyes fixed on his face tortured him—how was he to coax them to close in healing sleep? "Whit, I'm so tired," he said, in the lightest voice. "I've had such a hard day in the office. I'm going to take a nap right here beside you, holding your hand. Don't you remember the naps you and I used to have, side by side on the big rug in the library?" He leaned back in his chair, and closed his eyes; the room grew still again, save for his regular breathing. Whitney's, short, and thick, and fevered. Regester beckoned to the nurse and she went out with him. And then, for nearly an hour, Mackemer watched by the bedside his boy, sunk deep in treacherous sleep. His arm cramped torturingly from the ends of his fingers slowly on to his shoulder, but the grip of the little hand was his one privilege for which pain was cheap payment.

His heart quailed as he noted the swift ravages of the disease—the gaunt face, with its sunken eyes, the long, sharp outline of the little figure beneath the light covering. It seemed incredible that a few days of fever and pain could inflict so great a change. But—he set his teeth resolutely. He was there—he would fight it through with them. Never before had he realized how utterly and inseparably his every thought of the future was bound up with the life of his boy. Now, with the shadow of death's wings above the little bed, he dared cry to the great destroyer, "Halt!"

"Mamma, mamma!" The hoarse call from the child startled him; he shrank back in dismay as the door opened and Katharine came in—Katharine, the mother of his boy.

"Oh, mamma, where's papa?" He's gone, he's gone." Whitney stared with unseeing eyes straight into his father's face.

"No, no, darling. Papa's here. See, close beside you." It was her voice, low and ineffably tender, and Mackemer thrilled in a thousand nerves at the sound of it. He could not look at her—it seemed to him that every breath she drew came stifled from his own heart. He could only sit there in helpless silence, while she soothed her child with tenderest endearment until the wild light died out of his eyes, and he recognized his father again. "Oh, papa, papa," he sobbed, "I thought you were gone!"

"No, no, Whit, I won't go away. I'm going to stay with you, boy." His voice frightened him. There was a strange quality in it, new, unknown before, which seemed to match something deep within himself, equally new, equally strange, but, suddenly, passionately, insistently alive in him. The nurse came in to change a compress, and Whitney fought her away with feeble cries distressing to hear. "Let me," said Mackemer, quietly, and the change was made while he told a story with inimitable ease and charm. The nurse was outraged at the introduction of such methods into a sick room where death battled with life, but even she yielded presently to the spell of the tale, and listened with a blessed relaxation of anxiety, until Mackemer's voice grew soft and soft, and the story faded from the canvas upon which he had so lightly sketched it, and Whitney fell into the first refreshing sleep that he had known for days. Ah, his father was a master hand at manipulating his audience, the gift of temperament which made him a greater pleader at the bar stood him in good stead just now.

Moment by moment the sands of time slid through the great glass of life, and he and Katharine and nurse, watching their sleeping boy. Her face was like carved stone—she was pitifully still—but she was demanding more of herself than any woman should, and presently the cruelest fears began to slip slowly from her rigid eyes. She ignored them proudly, but they came fast, and faster, and in an agony of apprehension she turned her eyes unwittingly toward Mackemer, their eyes met in a shock terrible to them both. It seemed to Regester as he said, quietly: "His mother wrote that he asked for me. Will you tell her that I am here, and ask if I may see him now?" But the request was altogether a command, and Regester hesitated, stubbornly. He was thinking only of Katharine and of the fearful conflict he had watched in her before she had written that note to her husband.

Attorney Robinson Tells Interesting Tale of Way Apothecaries Can Compound Whisky Just Like Medicines---Mysterious Passwords.

The taking of depositions in the case of Alex Adams, petitioner, vs. the Ward Drug association, the Never Drug company, the W. S. Stockbridge Mercantile and Drug company and the Briggs & Cotton company, under the resolutions adopted by the city council last Monday night, will commence in the office of the city attorney at 11 o'clock this morning. Witnesses for the city have been notified, and the respondents in the cases named have been directed to be present if they so desire.

Notices, together with copies of the resolution adopted by which the licenses of C. L. Zobrist and J. H. Harmon were revoked by the city council last Monday evening, were served upon the offending druggists yesterday. Accompanying the notice of the revocation of the license was a city warrant for the amount of the unearned portion of the license fee. The warrants were not accepted by the druggists.

"Two bits—8, or two bits—8, appears to be the pass words used by habitual drinkers in the drug stores of this city," said City Attorney Robinson yesterday. "The term appears to have a peculiar significance in the drug business and I should judge, from the manner in which it has been used, that it served as a means of identifying the buyer as a liquor drinker.

"Had the stranger entered a drug store during the last six months and asked for a pint of whisky he would probably have been informed that the article could not be sold for less than $1, while had the same man asked for 'Two bits—8,' he would have received without question a six-ounce bottle of liquor for which he would have paid 25 cents. Had he asked for 'Two bits—8,' he would have received an eight-ounce bottle of liquor for 25 cents.

"Has any of the stuff been analyzed by the city chemist?" was asked.

"I do not care to answer that at this time," said the city attorney, "but I am satisfied that a large proportion of the stuff sold for whisky in this city has been made right here. I understand that one druggist buys a powder from the manufacturing chemist to which is added alcohol and water, making the whisky. From the effects the powder might have the same or similar kick as liquor. The powder thus receiving the name 'bug juice.'

"But it is a well-established fact," continued Judge Robinson, "that certain local Chicago department stores sell essences for the making of various liquors. For example the essence used in making cognac brandy costs 25 cents per ounce or $3.50 for 16 ounces. The essences for making Holland gin, Jamaica rum, Bourbon whisky and wheat whisky sells at 35 cents an ounce or $4 for 16 ounces. One ounce of the extract or essence is added to five gallons of proof spirits and there you have the liquor. Proof spirits? Well, that is a concoction of equal parts grain alcohol and water, and is known in police circles as 'white line.' The pure grain alcohol costs $2.60 per gallon. Now, suppose you wanted to mix a gallon of rye whisky, you would take a gallon of grain alcohol, add one gallon of pure Colorado Springs water, pour in two ounces of essence and you would have a grade of liquor that would sell here under the old system at 'two bits' and the entire two gallons would only cost you $2.30. At the rate of 'two bits—8' the liquor would be sold at eight ounces for 25 cents or $1 per quart, $4 per gallon, or $8 for the two gallons, which you had just made up. And yet they tell us that the druggist had to violate the law in order to make money enough to pay their license. It's fortunate for them that the ordinance does not also establish the grade or quality of liquor to be sold."

PLANS FOR COLORADO DAY AT PORTLAND EXPOSITION AUG. 22

An unusual amount of interest is being taken by Colorado Springs residents in the Colorado day ceremonies to be held at Portland on August 22. Governor McDonald has set that day for an official celebration at the Lewis and Clark exposition and the Colorado board of managers has arranged for an official train from Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, which will carry, in addition to Governor McDonald and his staff, the Colorado visitors to Portland on account of Colorado day and also the delegates from this state to the National Irrigation congress, which will be held in Portland, August 22-25. It is expected that there will be 50 delegates from Colorado to the congress, and everyone of them will go with the express determination of securing the next annual meeting of the congress for Colorado.

The program for Colorado day includes a public meeting at the temple of music, on the exposition grounds, at which addresses will be delivered by the governor of Oregon, the mayor of Portland, Governor McDonald of Colorado and others of note, among them being several of Colorado's congressmen. In the evening there will be either a banquet or a ball, or possibly both, and on the following day an excursion to Puget Sound points.

The Colorado day special will leave Denver over the Denver & Rio Grande railway at 9 a. m. Saturday, August 19.

The business men's organizations of the state are taking great interest in the trip and committees have already been appointed by the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, the Pueblo Business Men's association, the Denver Chamber of Commerce, and the Colorado State Commercial association to assist in arousing general interest among the people of the state. It is expected that at least 30 persons will go from Colorado Springs, with as many more from Pueblo. Details of the trip will be furnished by Henry Russell Wray, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, by the Rio Grande agents or by the Colorado State Commercial association at Denver.

EVERY dollar spent foolishly is not only lost, but also the interest on it for life. How many dollars are unwise people losing who refuse to fill their coal bins now while the low summer prices reign.

JOLLY CROWD TO GO ON TRIP TOMORROW

"It will be the jolliest bunch of old fellows that ever made the great trip," said D. C. MacWatters yesterday, speaking of the trip that the men from the Union Printers' home will make over the Short Line tomorrow. "The printers are all up in the air over the trip like the small boys are over the coming of the big circus. Charles Mulford Robinson, the street improvement expert, who is here in connection with the good roads meeting, and wife, will be guests of the Short Line and of the printers on the trip, and Hamlin Garland, the noted author, who has written so successfully about Colorado, has also been invited."

The printers' special will leave the Santa Fe depot at 8:30 instead of 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The train will stop at Point Sublime, Bruin Inn, Silver Cascade Falls, St. Peter's Dome, Duffield's and Cathedral Park. Photographs of the printers will be taken at all these scenic places and mounted copies taken to the convention of the International Typographical union and used as an inducement to secure the next convention for Colorado Springs. Individual box lunches, Manitou water and cigars will be furnished the printers gratis.

WASHED AWAY BY GETTING SOAKED

RANCHMAN KNOCKED SENSELESS, HORSES WERE KILLED AND HAY SET AFIRE BY JUPITER'S BOLTS.

While unloading a wagonload of hay at the Sinton ranch, southeast of Prospect Lake, about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Joe Dean, a Fountain ranchman, was stunned, his two horses were instantly killed and the load of hay was set on fire by a bolt of lightning. Mr. Dean was not stunned so severely but that he was able to get up and, by throwing off the top of his hay, save the greater part of the load. Mr. Dean's right arm was discolored and he received a severe shock.

Near the Johnson ranch, about seven miles southeast of the city, a large tree was struck by a bolt of lightning. A bolt also struck the Skinner ranch, but no damage is reported.

WASHOUTS DELAYED ROCK ISLAND TRAINS

A cloudburst which occurred near Jennings, Kas., 250 miles east of Colorado Springs, Monday night, swept away 30 feet of embankment along the Rock Island tracks, nearly washed the depot away and caused a delay of 12 hours on all Rock Island trains. Train No. 5, due here from Chicago at 7:50 o'clock yesterday morning, did not arrive until 8:30 o'clock last night, and trains No. 15 and No. 9, were also from 10 to 12 hours behind schedule.

A report received yesterday from Jennings describes the water wave as eight feet high and lasting a half hour. Wreck trains were sent out early yesterday morning and 200 men worked nearly all day before the washout was repaired. The three eastbound trains were held at Jennings until after the completion of the work.

FINDS ENEMY IN POSSESSION OF PREMISES BUT IS CHECKMATED BY BONA FIDE LEASE.

The last chapter in the trouble between W. N. Proctor and Harry Levan over the store room at 19½ East Pike's Peak avenue was enacted yesterday morning when Harry Chapman took charge of the store room under a lease signed by James F. Burns, the owner of the property.

Chapman proceeded to install the barber outfit formerly owned by Harry Levan, but for which Chapman holds a bill of sale, and then placed William Chinkow in possession as foreman. Proctor heard the news that his opponents were in possession and gathering his colored ballots about him went to the store room and threatened to take possession by force. The police were called and Chief Adams with two officers responded. The lease from Burns to Chapman was presented and the bill of sale for the barber outfit. Chief Adams then advised Proctor to leave the place without disturbance, and said that in the event of trouble the police officers were instructed to make arrests and use the patrol wagon. Mr. Proctor finally left the place with the determination to fight out the case in the courts.

COUNTY VALUATION TO BE ABOUT $24,000,000

The annual meeting of the county assessors of the state will be held in Denver on Tuesday next at 10 o'clock a. m., and the session will be held in the chamber of the house of representatives. It is expected that every assessor in the state will be present with an abstract of the assessment in his county, but the principal object of the meeting is to compare valuations and advise the state board of equalization.

All of the schedules are now in the hands of Assessor Alex Strachan and a compilation shows the total valuation to be about the same as last year, approximately $24,000,000 for the entire county.

"The valuation in this county remains about the same, the increase being offset by the allowance made by the new law on personal property," said Mr. Strachan yesterday. "There may be some minor changes but I cannot tell about that until after the meeting in Denver on Tuesday, which I shall attend."

CLEAN RESERVOIRS AT CONTRACTORS' EXPENSE

The stables and cook shacks erected by Clough & Anderson, the contractors on the Seven Lakes reservoir work, will be removed by the water department at the expense of the contractors. The stables and shacks are located on the high land above the high water mark of reservoir No. 5, so that the seepage water would drain into the new reservoir. To prevent this, ditches have been constructed to carry off the flood waters from that portion of the hill.

"There is considerable good lumber in the buildings," said Superintendent Hopkins yesterday, "and I believe there will be enough to offset the cost of cleaning the place, so I don't anticipate any trouble. The city can use the lumber to advantage. The water committee and a number of the aldermen will go over the ground with me next Friday, and then will be decided just what shall be done."

MARKET REVIEW

Controlled by Smaller Professional Element---Some Slight Advances.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Today's stock market had clearly enough fallen back into the hands of the smaller professional element which trades at the board from day to day the year around, as against the element which embarks in extensive speculative campaigns with intervals away from the stock market. The latter element is indulging in vacation idleness at this period. The general public shows no sign of interest in the market. The buying movement of Monday to cover short contracts put out on Saturday carried over into the early part of today and small speculative parties operated for an advance in one or two stocks in which there were plausible motives for an advance. Reading rebounded sharply from Saturday's attack owing to the denials publicly expressed by the president of the mine workers of the alleged danger of a strike. The United States Steel stocks were taken in anticipation of a strong showing to be made by the quarterly report of net earnings which was not expected to be published, however, until after the closing of the market.

The normal uncertainty of crop estimates at this season of the year and the irregular movements of stocks likely to result seem to discourage activity. The recovery in the price of wheat today was accompanied by some trivial black rust reports from Washington wheat regions. The glaring discrepancy between the tenor of these reports and those of the weather bureau's weekly crop bulletin did not deprive them of the influence both in the wheat and the stock markets and the late reaction in stocks was largely attributed to this cause. Reports from the west spoke of a hardening tendency in the money market there and the expectation of higher rates within a short time, owing to the loaned-up condition of the banks and the prospect of active business conditions as the crops are harvested.

The New York money market is easy but principally from the lightness of the demand, the funds offering showing no notable increase in volume. The stock market of the latter part of the day fell into almost total neglect but the decline was partly recovered and the closing was steady.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $4,814,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Conflicting Crop Reports Kept Traders Guessing During the Call.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Nervousness pervaded the wheat market throughout the entire session. At the outset the market was decidedly weak, September being down 1c to 1 at 66¾ to 66¾. Conditions in the northwest constituted the chief source of weakness. The weather throughout the Dakotas and Minnesota was still of a kind to minimize the danger of spread of black rust, clear skies prevailing generally over that section. Another reason for heavy selling that prevailed at the opening was found in liberal arrivals of new wheat at Chicago.

A decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool was an additional depressing influence. Toward the end of the first hour sentiment changed, the tone of the market becoming decidedly bullish. The cause was information contained in numerous advices from Minneapolis regarding damage by rust. According to some of the dispatches, the area affected is rapidly increasing, one of the reports asserting that samples of wheat from Manitoba showed signs of the blight. On active covering by shorts, the price of September was forced up to 85¾.

While the buying enthusiasm was at its height a fresh factor of bearish importance became available. This was the weekly report of the weather bureau commenting on the condition of spring sown wheat. The report claimed that, although black rust had been discovered in scattered localities in Minnesota and the Dakotas, no material damage has thus far resulted. Renewed weakness followed this announcement, many of the earlier buyers becoming active sellers. The market closed weak, with prices nearest the lowest point reached. Final quotations on September were at 80¾@81.

Corn was somewhat bullish as a result of smaller receipts than estimated. September opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 54¾ to 54¾, sold between 54¾ and 54¾ and closed at 54¾@¾.

Heavy liquidation caused weakness in the oats market. September opened ¼ lower at 28¾, sold between 28¾@29 and 29¼@29¾ and closed at the lowest point. Provisions were easy early in the session owing to apprehension concerning yellow fever in the south. At the close September pork was up 7½, lard was 2½@5 higher and ribs were unchanged.

MARKET REVIEW

Controlled by Smaller Professional Element---Some Slight Advances.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Today's stock market had clearly enough fallen back into the hands of the smaller professional element which trades at the board from day to day the year around, as against the element which embarks in extensive speculative campaigns with intervals away from the stock market. The latter element is indulging in selling operations at this period, the general public shows no signs of interest in the market. The buying movement of Monday to cover short contracts put out on Saturday carried over into the early part of today and small speculative parties operated for an advance in one or two stocks in which there were plausible motives for an advance. Reading rebounded sharply from Saturday's attack, owing to the denials published expressed by the president of the mine workers of the alleged danger of a strike. The United States Steel stocks were taken in anticipation of a strong showing to be made by the quarterly report of net earnings which was not expected to be published, however, until after the closing of the market.

The normal uncertainty of crop estimates at this season of the year and the irregular movements of stocks likely to result seem to discourage activity. The recovery in the price of wheat today was accompanied by some trivial black rust reports from Washington wheat regions. The glaring discrepancy between the tenor of these reports and those of the weather bureau's weekly crop bulletin did not deprive them of the influence both in the wheat and the stock markets and the late reaction in stocks was largely attributed to this cause. Reports from the west spoke of a hardening tendency in the money market there and the expectation of higher rates within a short time, owing to the loaned-up condition of the banks and the prospect of active business conditions as the crops are harvested.

The New York money market was easy but principally from the slightness of the demand, the funds offering showing no notable increase in volume. The stock market of the latter part of the day fell into almost total neglect but the tone was well recovered and the closing was steady.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value $1,814,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Conflicting Crop Reports Kept Traders Guessing During the Call.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Nervousness pervaded the wheat market throughout the entire session. At the outset the market was decidedly weak, September being down ⅛ to ¼ at 86⅝ to 86¾. Conditions in the northwest constituted the chief source of weakness. The weather throughout the Dakotas and Minnesota was still of a kind to minimize the danger of spread of black rust, clear skies prevailing generally over that section. Another reason for heavy selling that prevailed at the opening was found in liberal arrivals of new wheat at Chicago.

A decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool was an additional depressing influence. Toward the end of the first hour's movement changed, the tone of the market becoming decidedly bullish. The cause was information contained in numerous advices from Minneapolis regarding damage by rust. According to some of the dispatches, the area affected is rapidly increasing, one of the reports asserting that samples of wheat from Manitoba showed signs of the blight. On active covering by shorts, the price of September was forced up to 88¾.

While the buying enthusiasm was at its height, a fresh factor of bearish portent became available. This was the weekly report of the weather bureau commenting on the condition of spring crops, wheat. The report claimed that, although black rust had been discovered in scattered localities in Minnesota and the Dakotas, no material damage had thus far resulted. Renewed weakness followed this announcement, many of the earlier buyers becoming active sellers. The market closed weak with prices nearest the lowest point reached. Final quotations on September were at 86¾@⅞.

Corn was somewhat bullish as a result of smaller receipts than estimated. September opened unchanged to ⅛ higher at 54⅜ to 54¾, sold between 54⅜ and 54⅞ and closed at 54⅝@¾.

Heavy liquidation caused weakness in the oats market. September opened ¼ lower at 29¾, sold between 29⅞@29 and 29½@⅝ and closed at the lowest point.

Provisions were easy early in the session owing to apprehension concerning yellow fever in the south. At the close September pork was up 7½, lard was 2½@5 higher and ribs were unchanged.

NEGRO IDENTIFIED AS WOULD-BE MURDERER

Charles Harris, a negro about six feet two inches, who was arrested while camping out in the vicinity of Austin Bluffs last Friday, has been identified by Deputy Sheriff Sam Fabriglo of Pueblo county as the man wanted there for attempting to kill a saloonkeeper on Union avenue. Harris answered the description of the negro wanted in Pueblo to a dot, even to certain peculiar teeth marks. Detective Gus Threlkeld worked up the case from this end and notified the Pueblo officials of the capture. Deputy Sheriff Fabriglo arrived here Monday afternoon, identified the prisoner and took him back to Pueblo Monday night.
